Chapter One

"Can you believe it, Sam? They just explored another dimension door," Brad gasped while scrolling through his phone and polishing off his beer. Going out for dollar draft night was probably not the smartest way to study for our college chem tests tomorrow. "Ted is going to freak out when I send this to him."

Honestly, I had no clue what he was talking about. "Dimension doors? Like time travel and stuff?" I asked and took a sip of my beer.

"No—like portals to alternate dimensions," Brad said, hardly containing his excitement. "And get this, some of these dimensions actually can change you."

"Change?"

"Yeah, one DE..."

"DE?"

"Dimension Explorer. One of them went in a blonde and came out a brunette—little changes like that."

I raised an eyebrow—I was mildly interested. "And what do these experiments have to do with us?"

Brad looked around and then leaned in with a mischievous grin on his face. "There's a rumor going around that there's a dimension door in the abandoned tire plant. You know what that means, right?"

I rolled my eyes, knowing full well what Brad was getting at. "I guess we're not studying for the chem test?"

"Damn straight," Brad said while awkwardly fist-bumping me. "We could be the first civilians ever to explore another dimension!"

I couldn't help but shake my head. This will never work for us, but somewhere deep down, a part of me was a bit curious—a very tiny part of me.

Chapter Two

We Ubered there in record time. The problem was figuring out how to get into an abandoned tire plant—not as easy as it sounds. Thankfully the outside fence was rusted so badly that we were able to lift it up enough to squeeze through the bottom and...

"Help me up!" Brad called out while trying to jump to reach the open window. "C'mon."

"You, c'mon, Brad. You're way bigger than me."

"Hey, it's all muscle."

"Whatever, just give me a boost," I grumbled as he lifted me up just enough to... "Got it!"

Chapter Three

Once we were both in, we instantly realized finding the door would be next to impossible. The place was practically pitch black. And the DEs never gave a true description of the dimensional door. So how the hell can we tell the difference between a...

"I got it!" Brad called out. I could barely see him. When I got closer, I saw he was, in fact, in front of a door, but it was attached to a wall.

"Are you sure this is the..."

"Yes. I got a good feeling about this—start recording me." I swiped to the video recorder on my phone and started recording. "Citizens of earth."

"Really?"

"Okay, fine, start over, Sam." I just nodded and started recording again. "People of earth, I present to you a real dimension door."

I watched as Brad gave a thumbs up and took a step into the...BAM!

"You okay?"

"A little help," Brad grumbled as I grabbed his hand and lifted him up from underneath an old dirty mop and a bucket. Yep. We were now in what looked like a janitor's closet. Even in the dark, I could see Brad was embarrassed as he stood up. "Never tell anyone about..."

"Um, Brad, forget the closet. Look."

Chapter Four

The DE guys were right. It was a door. Though, they neglected to mention that it was glowing, floating in the air, and had a strange brass handle. Here goes nothing.

I slowly pulled open the door, and an eerie golden light spilled out. I felt this strange energy radiating from it. We looked at each other, wondering if we were crazy for doing this.

"Come on, Sam. It'll be an adventure that will get us zillions of likes and hearts," Brad said while giving my shoulder a playful nudge.

Without another word, we stepped through the door and...AHHH!

Chapter Five

It felt like we were walking through water but with the sensation of being pulled in all directions. There was this loud deafening sound that rang in our ears. But then, just as soon as it started, it stopped. Whoa! We were now in a different world.

It was like nothing I've ever seen before. The sky was all these different colors. The ground under our feet was made of some kind of glowing stones and...wait! Those are lights. Huh? I'm on stage?! I looked to the side, and Brad was by the curtains in shock, staring at...me? I looked down, and instead of my t-shirt and shorts, I had on a lowcut metallic pink crop top and extremely tight metallic hot pink leggings. Holy! I'm a...woman? My manhood was completely gone; I had long platinum-blond hair and boobs? Big ones! This is...

"SAMMY! SAMMY! SAMMY!" I looked out and saw a sea of people screaming my name. Wow! One guy tried to get on stage and throw me flowers until four security guys came out of nowhere and pushed him off.

"Um, thanks!" I sheepishly said into the mic and waved. As I moved, it was a strange feeling to have this alluring material hug my curves. I felt so feminine, but it was oddly freeing. And then, somehow, this body's memories came flooding into mine. What the hell?

I'm a pop star?

Chapter Six

Thankfully the stage manager next to Brad motioned me to come over. I guess the show was done. Whew! I waved to the crowd one more time and proudly walked backstage, feeling my boobs jiggle and my butt having this cute wiggle that...

"Sammy! You're a pop star!" Brad gasped as he tried to touch me, but the security guy put him in a headlock. As much as it was fun to see Brad turn red, I motioned to the guy to let him go.

"Brad, what the hell is going on?" I gasped as I frantically grabbed his arm, which was now way bigger than... "Holy, look at your muscular body, Brad. You're, um, hot and...oh, God!"

"What?" Brad asked as he gently placed his hand on my shoulder while making sure the security guy didn't hurt him again.

I pointed at a sign in the audience. Someone had a big poster that said, "Brad and Sam. NO!"

"No, what?" Brad still didn't get it.

"On this planet..."

"Dimension."

Whatever, wherever here is, we're dating and...hey, stop looking at my boobs," I snapped and covered them, which felt oddly pleasurable and...

"There she is!" I looked up, and suddenly, a massive crowd of screaming fans were running right toward me like a pack of wolves. This is...

"Sam! We need to go now! The door is still there!" Before I could say a word, I felt a hand grab me, and suddenly, everything went black.

Chapter Seven

I woke up, totally in shock. We were back in the abandoned building. Brad was next to me and equally as shaken up.

"What the hell just happened?" he said while running a hand through his hair as he sat up.

I shook my head, trying to process everything. "That was insane. I can't believe I was a pop star!"

Brad chuckled, but it was a nervous sound. "Yeah, Sam, you were definitely a star. And we were..."

"Don't say it," I mumbled as I looked around. I was glad to be home, but oddly, I wasn't feeling freaked out about the whole thing. "What do we do now, Brad? Hey, you okay?"

Brad suddenly looked really upset. "What the hell?" he grumbled as he scrolled through his phone. "None of the pics I took are on my phone."

"Maybe it is on your phone, but from that dimension." Wow. I was kinda proud that I pieced that together.

"Good point," Brad murmured as he helped me up. Oddly when he touched me, I felt different now. I almost wanted to... "The door!"

"What?"

"It's back, and it changed, Sam."

"Whoa! You think it's another dimension?" I asked as I walked a bit closer to it. It was glowing and free-standing like the other one but looked a little different. The light was also a different color.

"I don't know. Should we, um, take a look?"

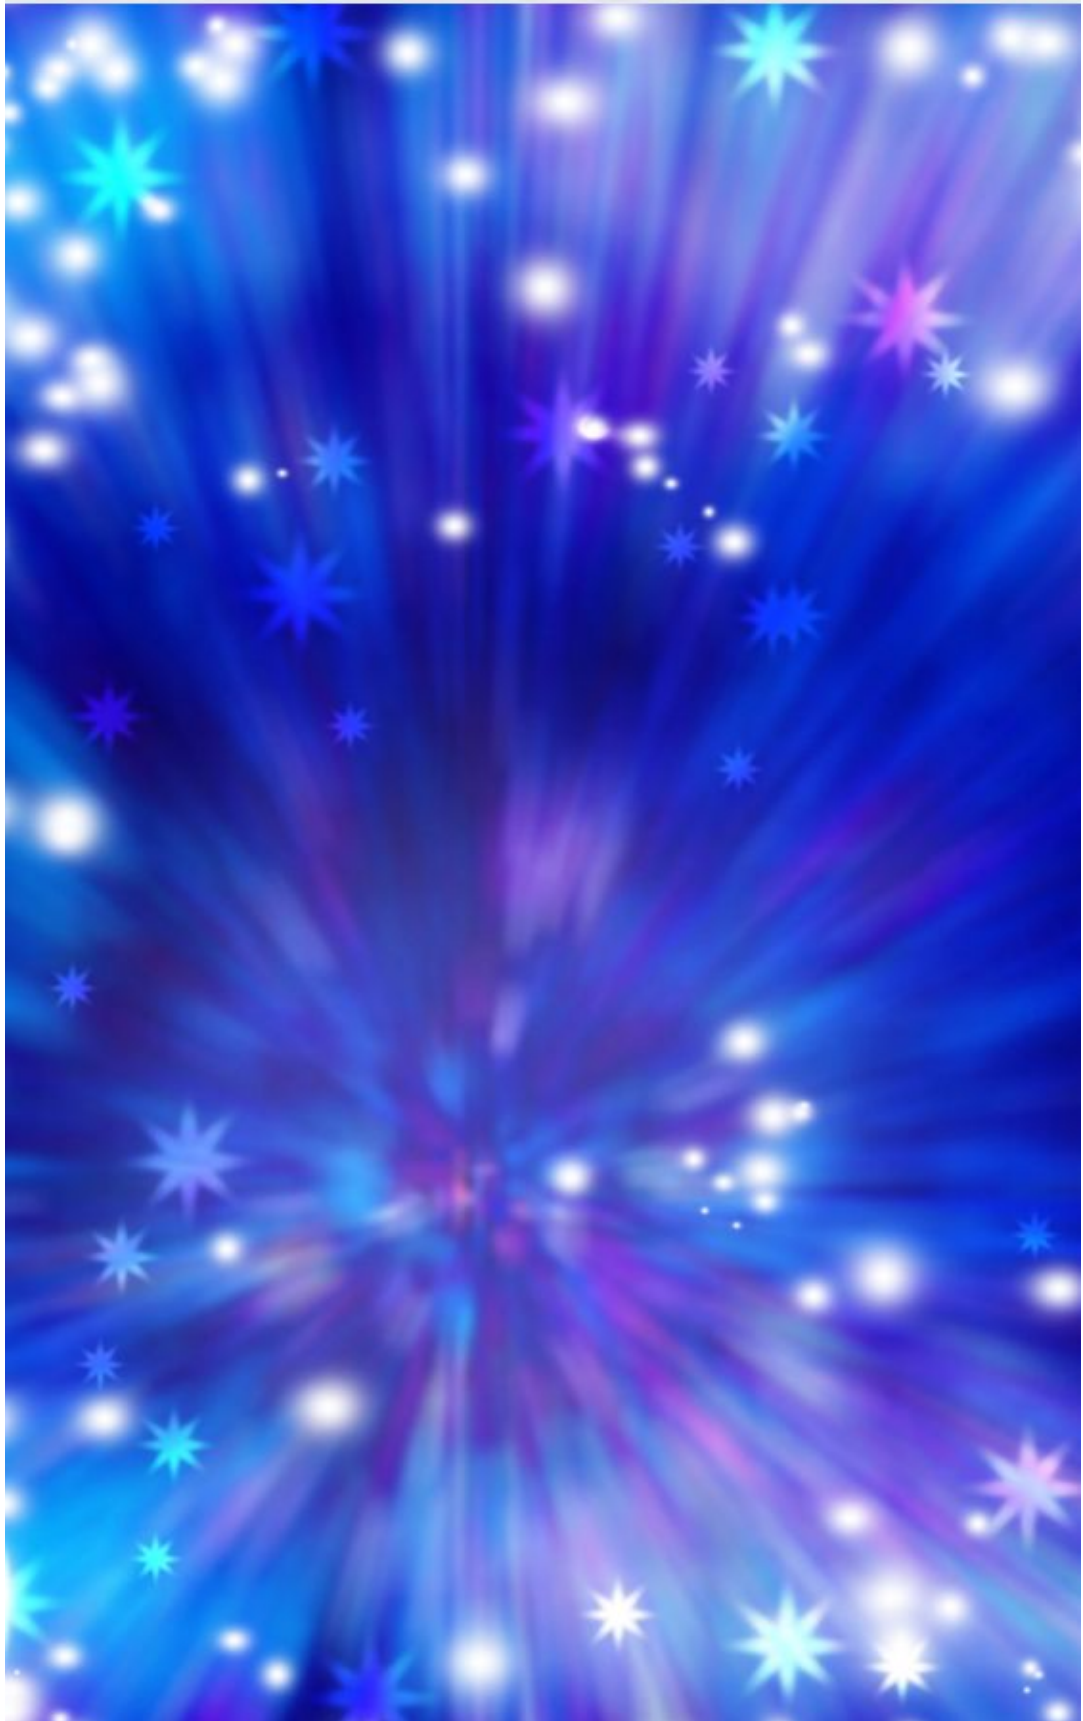

I paused, weighing the options. The idea of being a pop star was still thrilling, and the thought of going back and exploring more of me was tempting. But what if I was someone else in this new dimension? What if I was just boring me? Whatever.

"Let's do it," I said firmly as I opened the door.

Here goes nothing.

Chapter Eight

---

We stepped back through the door, and right away, the familiar feeling of being pulled in all...

"Huh?"

"Sammy, right this way," a man that I knew as Gunther, my manager, said as he guided me to another door. Thankfully this one was connected to a wall. I looked to the left and saw fans behind a rope that was heavily guarded by a security team. Fortunately, they weren't charging me, but still frantically waving and..."

"Sammy! Sammy! Over here!" I just waved to the fans, opened the door, and snuck into...

"Happy anniversary," a voice called out. I looked up at a literal wall of roses, and Brad was standing there in a tight tee and fitted pants. He looked so hot and yummy. Huh? Yummy? I really like him? This is insane. "Look, I know this is weird, Sam."

"Gee, ya think Brad?"

"I get it, but in this dimension, I...um..."

"What?"

"I love you," he whispered as he leaned in and gave me a soft kiss. Our lips then locked as our tongues swirled. I started exploring his body with my dainty hands as I felt him cup my massive mounds of flesh and...

"No."

"No?"

"We can't, Brad."

"But why? I love you, Sam."

"No, you don't. I mean, you do...just in this world," I whispered as I kissed him one more time. "We can't steal these bodies' lives. For better or worse, we have to go back to our own dimension—even though I do look really hot in metallic pink spandex."

"Yeah, you do," he said as he squeezed my pert butt, which made me feel even more tingly. No! Don't even think about kissing him again.

"We really have to go," I said sadly while stroking Brad's hair.

"I know," Brad replied, holding me tight. "I just wish we had more time."

I nodded as we snuck out of the room, found the glowing door, and....WHOA!

Chapter Nine

"Um, Brad?"

"Sam, why is your voice still...holy!"

We were back in our world; only the tire plant was now...

"A recording studio?!" I gasped in my feminine voice as I looked down. I had my pop star body. I was also surrounded by all of this high-tech equipment and a giant recording room. I was her. Me. And this is my...

"We, um, changed for good, Sam. A lot," Brad said as he held my hand. I gazed at his muscular body. I wanted to kiss him so bad now. This is so...

"Are you mad?"

"At what? That I'm a mega pop star? That I'm worth millions? And I have tons of adoring fans? I think I'll be okay."

"And what about me?" Brad asked as I moved close, letting his strong arms wrap around me.

"You, Brad, are the best part. Thanks to you, we opened a door to a brand new life, together."
